Pathways Overview

Martin Sisk, President of Irish League of Credit Unions says:

"Pathways is one of the many great initiatives to emanate from the ILCU. A total of 811 students from across the country undertook the Certificate programmes in 2013. In its inaugural year the Certificate ran in both Spring and Autumn yielding very positive feedback from both groups. The credit union specific content, high quality materials and knowledgeable and helpful tutors were some of the key features of the programmes which received particular praise.

The Pathways Diploma qualifications commenced in July 2013 with over 450 students opting to up-skill and expand their knowledge. The Diploma qualifications are specifically designed to equip students with an in-depth understanding of the new legal and regulatory requirements as well as an insight into topical areas such as risk management, compliance and strategic planning. As the environment we operate in evolves, we strive to grow our knowledge and skills in the areas of credit union governance and operations and it is through investment in our own development that we continue to secure the best service to our members".

Why Pathways?

CU Learning & Development and University College Cork understand that credit union volunteers and staff want to undertake programmes that are built specifically for them, offering flexibility, quality teaching and above all else excellent value.

Pathways has been developed in consultation with key stakeholders in the credit union movement. Each programme is designed to provide you with the most relevant and up-to-date content relating to governance, operations, regulation and management as it applies to credit unions today.

Pathways consists of six accredited programmes which are designed to be both challenging and engaging for students, while also offering the necessary assistance through high quality teaching and a flexible blended learning approach. By completing any of the Pathways programmes, you can expect to gain practical and relevant knowledge that will assist you in your current role and prepare you for the next step in your credit union.

Students who participate in any of the Pathways programmes can be assured of receiving first class tuition from our panel of highly experienced and exceptionally motivated tutors. They will also receive support from an on-line tutor and the facility to interact with other students via the Discussion Forum. All Pathways manuals and materials are produced by credit union subject matter experts to a superior standard.

The Pathways suite of programmes are delivered through a combination of distance learning, e-learning, classroom tutorials and online support and are designed to maximize flexibility and allow participants study at their own pace.

Exemption Information:

Pathways programmes replaced the ACCUP programme in 2013. A transitional process has been put in place which exempts ACCUP graduates from relevant parts of both the Certificate and Diploma. Completing the Diploma will allow ACCUP graduates expand their knowledge in areas which were covered in ACCUP and also cover new areas which are relevant to their roles today. This new knowledge is gained whilst also working towards a level seven Diploma in either Credit Union Governance or Credit Union Operations.

For credit union officers holding other qualifications which relate to financial services and/or credit unions, exemptions will be granted where the existing qualification covers content relevant to the programme/module for which an exemption is sought.

Pathways Scholarships:

The Valerie Hand Memorial Scholarship is offered by St. Patrick's Credit Union (ESB Staff) Ltd in memory of Valerie Hand, a much loved staff member who sadly passed away in 2012.

The National Supervisors Forum has offered two scholarships to qualifying board oversight/supervisory committee members throughout the island of Ireland to cover the full cost of completing the Pathways Certificate and/or Diploma in Credit Union Governance.

About CU Learning & Development:

CU Learning & Development programmes have been built on the concept of creating a suite of first-class educational programmes relevant for credit union volunteers and staff which are delivered in a flexible way through e-learning and classroom based programmes on a regional and in-house basis. They deliver key learning outcomes that will provide credit union officers with the knowledge and skills to fulfil member, regulatory and legislative demands. The on-going training and up-skilling of all credit union personnel remains the top priority of the CU Learning & Development department.

About UCC:

Founded in 1980, the mission of the Centre for Co-operative Studies is to promote, through its research, consultancy and educational activities, the continued growth of the co-operative movement, as an effective, locally-owned and democratically-controlled sector of the economy, designed to address the urgent needs and problems of the community. To this end the Centre has pioneered the development of new distance and online learning programmes to meet the needs of people involved in a broad range of co-operatives, social enterprises and local development initiatives, including the BSc in Credit Union Business, the BSc in Rural Development, and the MBS in Co-operative and Social Enterprises.

About ACE:

Adult Continuing Education (ACE) is the longest established dedicated centre for adult and lifelong learning in the Irish university system. Lifelong learning began at UCC in 1946, when, then President Alfred O'Rahilly, established the first extramural courses aimed at workers in Cork city. Given its long history, ACE has a unique standing and potential reputational advantage over other similar units in the Irish third level sector. Its original mission, to bring the university to communities which did not have access to third level education, is as important today as it was 66 years ago.
